1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Plaintiff Steven Benhayon's ("Plaintiff") Opening Brief Re: 1) Non-3 Applicability Of ERISA's Top Hat Exemption To The U.S. Wealth Accumulation
4 Plan; And 2) Defendants' Execution Of The U.S. Wealth Accumulation Plan In Bad 5 Faith ("Opening Brief") fails to establish any claim under ERISA. For the reasons 6 set forth in Defendants' Memorandum of Points and Authorities In Support Of Its 7 Motion For Partial Summary Judgment, and as amplified herein, there is no genuine 8 dispute with respect to any material fact relating to Plaintiff's claim for benefits 9 under the Royal Bank of Canada US Wealth Accumulation Plan (the "WAP" or the 10 "Plan") and Defendants are entitled to judgment on this claim as a matter of law.
11 Plaintiff has not, and cannot, establish that the WAP's Plan Administrator, the WAP 12 Committee, abused its discretion in denying his claim for benefits.

13 It is undisputed that Plaintiff received a distribution of $1,161,876.79 from the 14 WAP shortly before he was terminated in connection with a reduction in force and 15 that the only amounts which remained credited to his WAP account at termination 16 represented unvested employer contributions. Plaintiff's argument that the WAP is 17 not a "top hat" plan is irrelevant to whether Plaintiff is entitled to benefits under the 18 Plan. The only relevance of top hat status is that it exempts the plan from ERISA's 19 minimum vesting provisions. However, Plaintiff has not alleged in his complaint or 20 Opening Brief that the WAP violates ERISA's minimum vesting provisions.

21 Even if this status were relevant, the WAP satisfies the requirements of a top 22 hat plan. As such, even if subject to ERISA, it is exempt from many of the 23 requirements imposed ERISA plans, including but not limited to the vesting, 24 participation, and fiduciary mandates. For these reasons, as described more fully 25 below, Defendants should be granted summary judgment on Plaintiff's claim for 26 benefits under the WAP.

27

1 II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

2 The factual background underlying this case, including Plaintiff's employment
3 and participation history in the WAP and the relevant provisions of the WAP Plan 4 Document are set forth at pages 2 through 8 of Defendants' Memorandum of Points 5 and Authorities filed on July 22, 2009. In the interest of brevity, those passages are 6 incorporated by reference as if fully set forth herein.

7 III. STANDARD FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT.

8 Summary judgment should be granted where "there is no genuine issue as to 9 any material fact and the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law." 10 Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c). Plaintiff does not dispute that entry of summary judgment is 11 appropriate in this case. As set forth in Defendants' Memorandum In Support Of Its 12 Motion for Partial Summary Judgment, and as amplified herein, entry of judgment in 13 favor of Defendants and against Plaintiff is appropriate with respect to Plaintiff's 14 claim for benefits under the WAP.

15 IV. ARGUMENT

16 A. The WAP's Status as a Top Hat Plan is Irrelevant to Plaintiff's 17 Claim for Benefits.

18 Plaintiff's only reference to the potential relevance of the WAP's status as a 19 top hat plan is found at page 7 of his Opening Brief where he asserts that non-top hat 20 plans are subject to "a stringent set of statutory rules and attendant fiduciary duties 21 under ERISA." However, he does not identify which, if any, of those rules or duties 22 were allegedly violated or implicated in the denial of Plaintiff's request for benefits, 23 much less establish that the rule allegedly violated is one to which non-top hat plans
24 are subject while top hat plans are not. Top hat plans are exempt only from ERISA's 25 participation, vesting, funding, and fiduciary provisions. Demery v. Extebank
26 Deferred Comp. Plan (B), 216 F.3d 283, 287 (2d Cir. 2000) (citing 29 U.S.C. §§ 27 1051(2), 1081(a)(3), 1101(a)(1)). The only such issue even indirectly alleged by 28 Plaintiff is that he is entitled to benefits that had not yet vested as of the date of his

1 termination. However, he does not allege in his complaint, or argue in his Opening 2 Brief, that the WAP violates ERISA's minimum vesting provisions. Absent such an 3 argument, whether the WAP is a top hat plan bears no relevance to his claims, and 4 there is no need for the Court to decide this issue.

5 B. The WAP Satisfies The Requirements Of A Top Hat Plan.

6 Even if the WAP's status as a top hat plan were relevant, Plaintiff's argument 7 fails because the WAP meets the requirements of a top hat plan. ERISA defines a 8 top hat plan as a plan that is "unfunded and is maintained by an employer primarily 9 for the purpose of providing deferred compensation for a select group of 10 management or highly compensated employees." 29 U.S.C. § 1051(2). Top hat 11 plans are exempt from ERISA's participation, vesting, funding, and fiduciary 12 provisions. Demery, 216 F.3d at (citing 29 U.S.C. §§ 1051(2), 1081(a)(3), 13 1101(a)(1)). Plaintiff advances a number of arguments he claims warrant a finding 14 that the WAP did not qualify as a top hat plan. The undisputed facts, and the 15 applicable law, however, foreclose his contention.

16 1. The WAP Limits Participation to a Select Group.

17 Plaintiff contends that the WAP is not a top hat plan, because (as Dain 18 Rauscher represented to the Department of Labor when submitting the WAP's top 19 hat exemption notice), approximately 1200 employees were participating in the 20 WAP, which is more than the number permissible to constitute a "select group."
21 Opening Brief at 2. This argument is devoid of factual or legal support.

22 Initially, Duggan v. Hobbs, the very case on which Plaintiff relies, makes clear 23 that the relevant test is not how many employees participate in the plan but whether 24 eligibility "is limited to a small percentage of the employer's entire work force." 25 Duggan v. Hobbs, 99 F.3d 307, 312 (9th Cir. 1996) (emphasis added). Moreover, 26 "there is no existing authority that establishes when a plan is too large to be deemed 27 select." Alexander v. Brigham and Women's Physician's Organization, Inc., 467 F.
28 Supp. 2d 136, 143 (D. Mass. 2006) (internal quotation marks omitted) aff'd 513 F.3d

1 37 (1st Cir. 2008). Plaintiff's only authority on the issue is Darden v. Nationwide
 2 Mut. Ins. Co., a district court opinion which merely holds that a group comprising 3 18.7% of the employer's total workforce was too large to be considered "select" for 4 purposes of the top hat exemption. Darden v. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 717 F.
 5 Supp. 388, 397 (E.D.N.C. 1989) aff'd 922 F.2d 203 (4th Cir. 1991) rev'd on other 6 grounds, 503 U.S. 318 (1992). However, the Second Circuit subsequently held that 7 a plan which covered 15.34% was not too broad to qualify as a top hat plan, so long 8 as the other requirements of the test were satisfied. Demery, 216 F.3d at 289. The 9 Demery court distinguished Darden on the grounds that the group there was both 10 larger and not limited to management or highly compensated employees.
 11 Specifically, in Darden, the average income of participating employees was 12 comparable to that of other employees in the company at large. Id. at 288.

13 Plaintiff has not made any showing regarding the percentage of RBC's 14 employees who are eligible to participate in the WAP, other than her argument that it 15 must be more than one percent of the company's workforce. Opening Brief at 14:23-16 15:3. The argument is both speculative and irrelevant, since numerous courts have 17 found the "select group" requirement satisfied by much larger groups. See, e.g., 18 Alexander v. Brigham and Women's Physician's Organization, Inc., 513 F.3d 37, 46
 19 (1st Cir. 2008) (8.7% of company's workforce was a "select group"); Belka v. Rowe, 20 571 F. Supp. 1249, 1252 (D. Md. 1983) (up to 4.6%); Duggan, 99 F.3d at 312
 21 (4.3%); In re Battram, 214 B.R. 621, 625 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1997) (3.1%). In fact, 22 During Plan years 2003 through 2007, only 7.11 to 14.91% of RBC's workforce was 23 eligible to participate in the WAP. [Second Sikich Decl.¹ ¶ 6, p. 1:19-24.] Thus, at 24 all relevant times, the group of WAP-eligible employees was below the threshold 25 which Demery found acceptable, and in several years, below the thresholds found 26

27 ¹ "Second Sikich Decl." refers to the Second Declaration of Gabriela Sikich
 28 In Support Of Defendants' Motion For Partial Summary Judgment On Plaintiff's Claim For Benefits Under the Royal Bank of Canada US Wealth Accumulation Plan, filed concurrently herewith.

1 acceptable in other cases as well. Accordingly, there is no support for Plaintiff's 2 argument that the WAP fails to qualify as a top hat plan because it is not limited to a 3 "select group."

4 2. The WAP Limits Participation to Management And/Or 5 Highly-Compensated Employees.

6 Plaintiff further argues that the WAP does not meet the requirements of a top 7 hat plan because participation was not limited to executives, but rather extended to 8 the company's sales force, in his words "the working nuts and bolts of the RBC 9 system." Opening Brief at 17:21-24. Once again, however, Plaintiff misses the 10 mark. A plan qualifies as a top hat plan if it is limited to a select group of 11 "management or highly compensated employees." 29 U.S.C. § 1051(2) (emphasis 12 added). Where the participants qualify as "highly compensated employees," the 13 positions they hold are irrelevant for determining whether the plan qualifies for top 14 hat status. See Duggan, 99 F.3d at 312 (top hat requirements satisfied where plaintiff 15 did not dispute that he was highly compensated); Alexander, 513 F.3d at 46 (plan for 16 highest earning surgeons in medical group was top hat plan).

17 It is beyond reasonable dispute that all of the employees who are (or were) 18 eligible to participate in the WAP were "highly compensated." The average 19 earnings of all WAP-eligible employees from 2003 through 2007 were between 20 $269,156 and $345,307 per year. [Second Sikich Decl. ¶ 7, p. 1:25-27.] Thus, in 21 2003 through 2007, WAP-eligible employees earned at least 3 times as much as the 22 general workforce of WAP-participating subsidiaries, and in one year, earned 4.5 23 times as much. Id. ¶ 8, p. 1:28-2:3. Accordingly, WAP-eligible employees were 24 highly compensated. See Alexander, 513 F.3d at 46 (plan contributors were highly 25 compensated where they earned five times the income of the workforce); Demery, 26 216 F.3d at 289 (plan-eligible employees were highly compensated where they 27 earned more than twice the average workforce earnings).

28

1 The fact that the WAP participants were highly compensated is further 2 supported by the definition of highly compensated taken by the Internal Revenue 3 Service during the relevant time period. See Belka, 571 F. Supp. at 1253
 4 (considering IRS standard for “highly compensated” in determining that plan 5 participants were within a “select group”). In 2007, the Internal Revenue Service 6 (IRS) defined the Highly Compensated Employee Limitation (“HCE”) under 7 §414(q)(1)(B) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 using an earnings threshold of 8 $100,000 per year. See IR-2008-118. The WAP-eligible employees have always 9 easily exceeded this standard.

10 3. Plaintiff’s Assertion that WAP Participants Lacked 11 Bargaining Power is Meritless.

12 Plaintiff further contends that the WAP fails to qualify as a top hat plan 13 because WAP participants did not have the bargaining power to affect the terms and 14 conditions of the WAP. Open Br. 15:4-18:5. However, nothing in the statutory 15 definition of a top hat plan creates such a requirement. Indeed, Plaintiff’s entire 16 argument rests on a single district court opinion from outside this circuit, Carraba v.
 17 Randalls Food Markets, Inc., 38 F. Supp. 2d 468 (N.D. Tex. 1999), which, in turn, 18 relies on an opinion letter from the Department of Labor stating its views as to 19 Congress’ reasons for exempting top hat plans from many of ERISA’s 20 requirements.² See Carraba, 38 F. Supp. 2d at 477. Such opinions hardly provide 21 authoritative grounds to depart from the plain language of the statute and add 22 additional requirements to those enacted by Congress. Not surprisingly, the Carraba 23 holding has come under heavy criticism. See Alexander, 513 F.3d at 46-48.

 25 ² Plaintiff incorrectly asserts that Carraba “relied heavily on the Ninth 26 Circuit’s reasoning in Duggan,” suggesting that it was nothing more than a logical 27 extension of that opinion. Opening Brief at 15:20-22. In fact, Carraba does not 28 even cite to Duggan. Moreover, while Duggan suggests that a participant’s ability to affect the terms and operation of the plan through negotiation may be a relevant factor in determining top hat status, it nowhere holds that such power is required.
 Indeed, the Duggan court had no occasion to reach the issue, as it found that the plaintiff there did have such power. Duggan, 99 F.3d at 312-13.

1 The Alexander court rejected Carraba's (and Plaintiff's) position that a plan 2 does not qualify as a top hat plan unless its participants have bargaining power to 3 influence the terms and operation of the plan on multiple grounds. First, the court 4 noted, the DOL opinion letter did not present itself as an interpretation of the 5 relevant statute or purport to define the requirements for top hat status under the 6 statute. Id. at 47, 48. Thus, by its own terms, it did not support the conclusion 7 which Carraba derived from it. Id. Second, neither the language of the statute nor 8 its legislative history "contains the slightest hint that courts would consider 9 employees' ability to bargain over the terms of their deferred compensation plans" in 10 determining top hat status. Id. at 48. To the contrary, the tests contained in the 11 statute seemed reasonably designed to effectuate the purpose ascribed to Congress by 12 the opinion letter. Id. at 47. For all the reasons, the Alexander court declined to 13 follow Carraba, as this Court should as well. Id. at 47-48

14 Even if this Court rejects the better-reasoned opinion in Alexander and follows 15 Carraba, Plaintiff's argument would still fail because he provides no evidence to 16 support his assertion that WAP participants lacked bargaining power, arguing instead 17 that the fact of this lawsuit proves that he lacked such bargaining power. However, it 18 could just as easily show that he did have power, but now regrets the deal that he 19 struck. Since he offers no evidence to support his position, Plaintiff's argument 20 should be rejected.

21 4. The WAP Is Unfunded.

22 On pages 18 through 20 of his Opening Brief, Plaintiff argues that the WAP is 23 not "unfunded" under ERISA, and that it therefore does not meet the definition of a 24 "top hat plan." The lynchpin of Plaintiff's argument is that, "[a]s the WAP clearly 25 comprises Plaintiff's own contributions, RBC cannot claim that the WAP was 26 completely 'unfunded' and thus top hat exempted." Opening Brief at 19. This 27 argument represents a material misrepresentation of the operation of the WAP and a 28 fundamental misunderstanding of the law.

1 ERISA does not define the circumstances under which a plan is “unfunded.”
2 In examining that issue, the concept of funding a plan implies the existence of assets 3 held separately from the general assets of the employer. A plan is unfunded where 4 there is no res (or property) separate from the general assets of the company.
5 Dependahl v. Falstaff Brewing Co., 653 F.2d 1208, 1214 (8th Cir. 1981), cert.
6 denied, 454 U.S. 968 (1981). See also Belka, 571 F. Supp. at 1251-52; DOL
7 Advisory Op. 81-11A (Jan. 15, 1981). In this case, the undisputed evidence is that 8 the benefits under the WAP are paid from the general assets of the Company.
9 [Sikich Decl.,³ ¶ 8, Exh. G, pp. 25 & 35-36 (2007 Plan Document §§ 2.4 & 8.2).] 10 Plaintiff has come forward with no evidence whatsoever of the existence of a 11 separate trust that would somehow cause the WAP to be considered funded under 12 ERISA. Plaintiff’s assertions to the contrary are meritless.

13 Furthermore, contrary to the implication Plaintiff asks the Court to draw, 14 Plaintiff did not contribute one red cent of his own money to the WAP. What 15 Plaintiff and other participants did was agree, at a point before they became entitled 16 to payment, to opt to forego the future receipt of a portion of their compensation.
17 [Sikich Decl., ¶ 8, Ex. G, page 25, (2007 WAP Plan Document § 2.2)] While 18 Plaintiff could have taken payment of these amounts, he chose instead to defer 19 receipt until a future date (hence the term “deferred compensation”), subject to a 20 potential return on investment in the interim.

21 This structure of deferred compensation is a well established model for top hat 22 plans. Top hat plans do not fail to be “unfunded” solely because their terms permit 23 employee-participants to elect to defer percentage of their compensation. DOL 24 Advisory Op. 90-14A (May 8, 1990). Plaintiff’s assertion that the WAP is not a top 25 hat plan, because it is not unfunded, based on the fact that some of the balance in the 26

27 ³ “Sikich Decl.” refers to the Declaration of Gabriela Sikich In Support Of 28 Defendants’ Motion For Partial Summary Judgment On Plaintiff’s Claim For Benefits Under the Royal Bank of Canada US Wealth Accumulation Plan, filed concurrently with Defendant’s moving papers in support of this motion.

1 participants' accounts is derived from their deferred compensation is simply not the 2 law. Defendants are entitled to judgment as a matter of law on this issue.

3 C. Plaintiff's Suggestion of a Conflict of Interest is Meritless.

4 In his Opening Brief, Plaintiff insinuates the existence of some sort of conflict 5 of interest based on the administration of the WAP by the WAP Committee and 6 asserts that, as a result, "there were no checks and balances in place to ensure the just 7 enforcement of the WAP." See Opening Brief at 22-23. However, under ERISA's 8 statutory scheme, the "checks and balances" Plaintiff seeks are provided by the 9 judicial review of administrative determinations regarding benefits. See Firestone
10 Tire & Rubber Co. v. Bruch, 489 U.S. 101, 108-09 (1989) (explaining ERISA's 11 remedial provisions, including judicial review of adverse benefit determinations).
12 Thus, Plaintiff's argument that there should be "checks and balances" and RBC's 13 administration scheme is somehow deficient find no support in ERISA or the case 14 law interpreting it.

15 As explained in Defendant's Memorandum of Points and Authorities in 16 support of this motion, that review is conducted under an abuse of discretion 17 standard where, as here, the plan grants the Plan Administrator discretion to make 18 determinations regarding benefits. Thus, the alleged conflict of interest is relevant 19 only insofar as it might impact the level of deference owed to that decision. Abatie 20 v. Alta Health & Life Ins. Co., 458 F.3d 955, 968-9 (9th Cir. 2006) In fact, there was 21 no conflict of interest here that would call for heightened scrutiny of the WAP
22 Committee's decision and, even if there was, that decision must still be affirmed 23 because no other interpretation of the WAP Plan provisions is possible.

24 Plaintiff is mistaken that the individuals who reviewed his claim for benefits 25 or his appeal had conflicting interests. Under the terms of the WAP, Plaintiff's 26 benefits were payable by the Royal Bank of Canada because Plaintiff is a resident of 27 California. [Sikich Decl., ¶ 8 Ex. G, page 35 (2007 WAP Plan Document § 8.2(a)- 28 (b).] However, none the members of the WAP Committee who considered

1 Plaintiff's claim or appeal were employed by that entity. [Second Sikich Decl. ¶ 9, 2 p. 2:4-13.] Since there was no structural conflict of interest, Plaintiff must point to 3 other facts suggesting that the members of the WAP Committee were anything other 4 than disinterested, which he has not done, or that these conflicting interests 5 influenced their decision-making process. To the contrary, as Defendants have 6 pointed out repeatedly, the decision to deny Plaintiff's claim is nothing more than a 7 straightforward application of the terms of the WAP.

8 In addition, even if Plaintiff could show that a conflict of interest existed and 9 affected the review of his claim, it would only mean that the Court would apply 10 heightened scrutiny to the WAP Committee's decision rejecting his claim. Abatie, 11 458 F.3d at 968-9 (9th Cir. 2006) However, given the clear terms of the WAP 12 regarding vesting and forfeiture, that decision must be upheld even under a de novo 13 standard of review. Since the terms of the WAP permit only one conclusion, the 14 existence of any alleged conflict of interest is immaterial.

15 D. Plaintiff's Forfeitures Were Consistent with the Terms of the WAP.

16 On pages 23 through 25 of his Opening Brief, Plaintiff argues that the WAP is 17 "completely silent" on the issue of vesting with respect to termination without cause, 18 and that this somehow renders the forfeiture of the unvested Company Contributions 19 in Plaintiff's account "wrongful." Opening Brief at 24-25. Plaintiff contends that a 20 critical issue in this case is whether "the WAP [Plan]" was set up so as to specifically 21 preclude benefit vesting and distributions to employees, like Plaintiff, who are 22 terminated without cause," asserting that the terms of the WAP are "completely 23 silent on the vesting and distribution of an employee's benefits when such an 24 employee is terminated without cause." Opening Brief at 1.

25 This argument is specious. The WAP Plan Document expressly provides that, 26 subject only to certain specifically enumerated exceptions, "all Company 27 Contributions and Mandatory Deferred Compensation that are not vested on the 28 participant's employment termination date shall be deemed forfeited, and such 1 participant's account shall be appropriately reduced." [Sikich Decl., ¶ 8, Exh. G, p.

2 29 (2007 WAP Plan Document § 4.5).] Those exceptions are (i) termination on 3 account of death, disability or retirement, (ii) termination for cause, and (iii)
4 termination due to restructuring. [Sikich Dec. ¶ 8, Ex. G, p. 28-29 (2007 WAP Plan 5 Document §§ 4.2 (i) (ii) & 4.4).] While the terms of the WAP impose more 6 stringent provisions regarding vesting in situations in which the participant's 7 termination is for cause, the general rule is that unvested Company Contributions are 8 forfeited in the event of termination. [Sikich Decl., ¶ 8, Exh. G, p. 29 (2007 WAP 9 Plan Document § 4.5).] The undisputed facts in this case are that the unvested 10 Company Contributions in Plaintiff's account were forfeited in accordance with the 11 terms of the WAP upon his termination. Plaintiff's claim for a distribution of those 12 amounts therefore fails as a matter of law.

13 Plaintiff's quotation of the relevant terms of the WAP is inaccurate in the 14 extreme. At pages 7 and 8 of his Opening Brief, Plaintiff includes a long block 15 quotation not from the WAP plan document in effect at the time he presented his 16 claim for benefits, but a Summary Description and Prospectus from 2003.⁴ Even 17 setting aside whether this document is properly part of the administrative record, it 18 does far more to support Defendants' position than Plaintiff's. Indeed, Plaintiff has 19 so altered and misquoted the text as to create the impression that it supports his 20 position when, in fact, it refutes it. While the first paragraph of the block quotation 21 accurately repeats the text of the document, the very next paragraph of the text has 22 been omitted without any ellipses in the block quotation to signal its omission. That 23 paragraph, moreover, directly contradicts the argument for which Plaintiff cites the 24 document, stating:

25
26 27 ⁴ The relevant document is attached to Plaintiff's Amended Supplement To 28 The Administrative Record, filed on July 31, 2009. Plaintiff cites this document as "SAA 62," which, he explains refers to the page bearing bates-stamp no. 62 in the "Plaintiff's Supplement to the Administrative Record." See Opening Brief at p.
4:23-26 (footnote 6).

5 forfeiture of such contributions.

6 [Pl.'s Amended Suppl. To The Admin. Record, [dkt. # 37], filed July 31, 7 2009, at 00062 (2003 Summary Description and Prospectus p. 7).]

8 The next two paragraphs of the block quotation repeat some of the text of the 9 following paragraph in the document, but again language has been added or omitted 10 without proper use of ellipses or brackets to signal alterations. [Compare Opening 11 Brief at 8:3-9 with Pl.'s Amended Suppl. To The Admin. Record, [dkt. # 37], filed 12 July 31, 2009, at 00062 (2003 Summary Description and Prospectus p. 7).]

13 Plaintiff's brazen misuse of this document is worthy of judicial admonition, if not 14 sanction.

15 Plaintiff's citation to the distribution provisions of the WAP Plan Document is 16 only slightly less misleading. At page 4 of his Opening Brief, Plaintiff points out 17 that the WAP provides special rules for distribution upon separation. Opening Brief 18 4:3-8. What Plaintiff glosses over, however, is that it is the "Account Balance" 19 which is subject to distribution. And Section 4.5 of the WAP provides in 20 unambiguous language that "[e]xcept as otherwise specifically set forth herein, all 21 Company Contributions . . . that are not vested on the participant's employment 22 termination date shall be deemed forfeited, and such participant's account shall be 23 appropriately reduced." [Sikich Decl., ¶ 8, Exh. G , p. 29 (2007 WAP Plan 24 Document § 4.5).] Thus, after termination, any unvested Company Contributions are 25 no longer included in the "Account Balance" and the distribution provisions in 26 Section 5 of the WAP have no bearing on the treatment of these forfeited amounts.

1 E. The Determination that Plaintiff's Termination Resulted from a 2 Restructuring Benefitted Plaintiff.

3 At page 22 of his Opening Brief, Plaintiff attacks the fact that Plaintiff's 4 termination was deemed by the Committee to have been the result of a restructuring.⁵ 5 Plaintiff points out that Section 4.4 of the 2007 WAP provides:

6 In the event a participant ceases to be employed by the Company, any 7 Participating Subsidiary and any other affiliate of the Company due to an 8 organizational restructuring (as determined in the sole discretion of the 9 Committee), all Mandatory Deferred Compensation in such participant's 10 account shall become vested, but all unvested Company Contributions 11 shall be forfeited.

12 [Sikich Dec. ¶ 8, Ex. G, p. 29 (2007 WAP Plan Document § 4.4).]

13 As Plaintiff notes, the Committee is vested with discretion to make the 14 determination as to whether a participant's termination is the result of a restructuring.
15 However Plaintiff has not shown that the Committee abused its discretion in 16 characterizing the reduction in force which eliminated his position as a restructuring, 17 only that he disagrees with that interpretation of the plan language. The relevant 18 inquiry, however, is whether the Committee's interpretation was so unreasonable as 19 to amount to an abuse of discretion. Firestone, 489 U.S. at 114-15. Short of that 20 level, the Court must defer to the Committee's interpretation of the WAP Plan 21 Document.

22 Moreover, even if Plaintiff were correct that section 4.4 does not apply to his 23 termination, it would make no difference, since section 4.4 is more lenient than the 24 general forfeiture provision in section 4.5. Under section 4.4, any Mandatory 25 Deferred Compensation in his account would have vested (it would not have

26 ⁵ Plaintiff inaccurately states that there is no record that the WAP Committee 27 actually met and considered his initial request for accelerated vesting which he 28 presented in November 2007. In fact, the Committee considered and rejected the claim at its meeting on December 7, 2007, as reflected in the agenda of that meeting and the minutes entered subsequently. These documents are attached to the Sikich Declaration filed on July 22, 2009 as Exhibits K and L, respectively.

1 otherwise) and only Company Contributions would be forfeited. [Sikich Dec. ¶ 8, 2 Ex. G, p. 29 (2007 WAP Plan Document § 4.4).] However, the only amounts 3 remaining in Plaintiff's WAP account at the time of his termination were unvested 4 Company Contributions, which are forfeited upon termination under both sections 5 4.4 and 4.5. Thus, whichever section governs, Plaintiff was not entitled to vesting of 6 the amounts he seeks by this lawsuit.

7 F. The Absence of an Integration Clause is Irrelevant.

8 Finally, at page 25 of his Opening Brief, Plaintiff argues that the 9 absence of an integration clause means that the terms of the WAP do not represent 10 the entire agreement of the parties. Opening Brief at 25. This argument is absurd.
11 The interpretation of the terms of the Plan is vested in sole discretionary authority of 12 the WAP Committee. [Sikich Decl., ¶ 8, Exh. G, p. 34 (2007 WAP Plan Document 13 § 7.1).] The ability to amend the terms of that document is expressly limited to 14 action by either the Committee or the Board of Directors. Plaintiff provides no 15 factual support for any potential modification of the terms of the WAP Plan 16 documents with respect to his participation therein.

17 Moreover, the only support Plaintiff provides for his argument consists of two 18 unreported decisions of the Ninth Circuit. Such citation is, of course, improper for 19 the purpose for which Plaintiff offers these authorities. See 9th Cir. R. 36.3.
20 Further, at least one of those relies on California law. See Satchwell v. Long John 21 Silvers, Inc., 1992 U.S. App. LEXIS 9519 *5 n.1 (9th Cir. April 9, 1992). Subject to 22 certain exceptions not applicable in this case, Section 514(a) of ERISA provides that 23 "the provisions of [Title I and Title IV of ERISA] shall supersede any and all State 24 laws insofar as they may now or hereafter relate to any employee benefit plan." 29 25 U.S.C. § 1144(a). Plaintiff's reliance on a state-law contract theory to support his 26 claim is contrary to the well-settled law in this area and should be rejected.
27 Defendants are entitled to judgment as a matter of law on Plaintiff's claim for 28 additional benefits under the WAP.

1 V. CONCLUSION

2 Plaintiff's Opening Brief focuses on irrelevant arguments attacking, generally, 3 the WAP and its administration. Plaintiff fails to explain anywhere in his brief how 4 these arguments relate to his claim for benefits under the Plan. This may be because 5 he must acknowledge that under the clear language of the Plan, he is not entitled to 6 the benefits he claims.

7 Based on the provisions of the WAP, and the Administrative Record, it is clear 8 that the Committee did not abuse its discretion in denying Plaintiff's claim for 9 benefits. Defendants are entitled to judgment as a matter of law.

1 I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

2 In accordance with this Court's August 10, 2009 Order On Plaintiff's Ex Parte 3 Application And Amended Briefing Schedule, Defendants Royal Bank of Canada, 4 RBC Capital Markets Corporation (incorrectly named and sued as "RBC Wealth 5 Management Company, formerly RBC Dain Rauscher, Inc."), and The Royal Bank
6 of Canada US Wealth Accumulation Plan (collectively "Defendants") hereby submit 7 their Supplemental Reply Brief in support of their Motion for Partial Summary
8 Judgment On Plaintiff's Claim For Benefits Under The Royal Bank of Canada US 9 Wealth Accumulation Plan (the "Motion").

10 Defendants previously filed a reply brief in support the Motion on August 5, 11 2009. After that brief was filed, this Court issued its August 10, 2009 Order, which 12 amended the briefing schedule for the ERISA portion of the case and provided that 13 Defendants' reply brief would be due September 28, 2009, rather than August 5, 14 2009, as previously set by the Court.

15 Defendants' reply brief filed on August 5, 2009 addresses those matters raised 16 in Plaintiff's Opening Brief filed on July 22, 2009. To avoid needlessly expanding 17 the record, this brief will be limited to addressing developments in this litigation 18 since that brief was filed which may be relevant to the Court's decision on the 19 Motion. Defendants respectfully refer the Court to their prior submissions in support 20 of the Motion for all matters not addressed herein.

21 II. DEFENDANTS' STYLED THEIR OPENING BRIEF AS A MOTION
22 FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT OUT OF AN ABUNDANCE OF 23 CAUTION AND TO AVOID ANY PREJUDICE TO PLAINTIFF.

24 After Defendants filed their reply brief, this Court issued its August 10, 2009 25 Order stating that Defendants had ignored the Court's May 4, 2009 Minute Order by 26 filing a motion for summary judgment rather than an Opening Brief on the question 27 of ERISA benefits. Defendants never intended to disregard this Court's directions 28 and were in fact attempting to comply with those directions in good faith. Based on the May 4, 2009 Minute Order, Defendants understood that the Court had requested

1 briefing from the parties which would resolve “the ERISA portion of the case.”
2 Defendants further believed that, if that portion of the case were resolved in their 3 favor, they would be entitled to judgment on Plaintiff’s claim for benefits under the 4 Royal Bank of Canada U.S. Wealth Accumulation Plan (the “WAP”) and wished to 5 make an affirmative request for such relief. Arguably then, Defendants’ opening 6 brief would be, in substance, a dispositive motion regarding that claim to which the 7 requirements of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56 and Local Rules 56-1 through 8 56-4 might conceivably apply. Hence, out of an abundance of caution, and to avoid 9 any possible waiver of its right to judgment should the Court resolve the ERISA 10 portion of the case in its favor, Defendants styled their opening brief as a motion for 11 partial summary judgment and submitted the supporting documents required for the 12 Court to rule on such a motion.

13 Defendants viewed this approach as a conservative one which could not 14 possibly prejudice Plaintiff. Styling their opening brief as a motion for partial 15 summary judgment would not require Plaintiff to meet any unanticipated legal issues 16 or evidence, since the Court had already announced that these briefs would fully 17 resolve the merits of Plaintiff’s claim for benefits under the WAP. Moreover, given 18 that these briefs were intended to resolve the ERISA portion of the case, Plaintiff 19 was already required to make the necessary showing to prevail on the merits, which 20 is more than the showing that would be required to defeat a motion for summary 21 judgment. Additionally, since Plaintiff had already enjoyed more than four months 22 to conduct discovery, he had more than sufficient opportunity to develop whatever 23 evidence he felt he needed to make this showing. Finally, the stipulated briefing 24 schedule allowed Plaintiff two weeks to prepare his responsive brief, more than the 25 time provided under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or the Local Rules of this 26 Court to oppose a motion for summary judgment. Consequently, a motion for partial 27 summary judgment would not impose any burdens on Plaintiff that he was not 28 already required to meet and he would not be unduly prejudiced if Defendants

1 proceeded in this manner.

2 Based on the Court's August 10, 2009 Order, Defendants now understand that 3 the Court wished to resolve the ERISA portion of the case by way of briefing, but 4 without resort to the usual procedures for obtaining summary judgment. Defendants 5 apologize for any confusion they have created by their earlier misunderstanding and 6 have complied with the provisions of that Order. Moreover, Defendants have no 7 objection should the Court wish to conduct a court trial of Plaintiff's claim for 8 benefits under the WAP based on the existing court record, in the manner provided 9 in Kearney v. Standard Ins. Co., 175 F.3d 1084, 1094-95 (9th Cir. 1999).

10 III. THE FURTHER DISCOVERY CONDUCTED BY PLAINTIFF AFTER 11 THIS COURT'S AUGUST 10, 2009 ORDER DOES NOT AFFECT THE COURT'S RULING ON THE ERISA PORTION OF THE CASE.

12 In its August 10, 2009 Order, this Court granted Plaintiff leave to take the 13 deposition of Gabriela Sikich. Defendants complied and the deposition was 14 completed on August 28, 2009. At the deposition, Defendants also produced 290
15 pages of documents at the deposition, in response to various Requests for Production 16 included with the Notice of Deposition. During this period, Defendants also 17 responded to Plaintiff's Special Interrogatories (Set Two) and provided Plaintiff with 18 unredacted versions of 43 pages previously produced in redacted form. No other 19 discovery has taken place since the Court issued its August 10, 2009 Order.

20 While Plaintiff may offer some of the testimony, documents and/or responses 21 obtained from this discovery for the Court's consideration, none of it has any bearing 22 on the issues the Court must decide at this juncture. The ERISA portion of this case 23 is a straight-forward claim by Plaintiff that he was improperly denied benefits under 24 the WAP, which both sides have agreed to treat as a pension plan subject to ERISA 25 for purposes of this Motion. Whether an employee is entitled to benefits under an 26 ERISA plan "stands or falls by the terms of the plan." Kennedy v. Plan Adm'r for 27 DuPont Sav. and Inv. Plan, ___ U.S. ___ 129 S.Ct. 865, 875 (2009) (internal 28 quotation marks and citation omitted). Thus, if the provisions of the WAP are

1 unambiguous, which they are, then Plaintiff's claim must be rejected, and any 2 argument that those terms are somehow unreasonable or were set up "in bad faith" is 3 simply irrelevant. Aramony v. United Way Replacement Benefit Plan, 191 F.3d 140, 4 149 (2d. Cir. 1999) ("As a general matter, unambiguous language in an ERISA plan 5 must be interpreted and enforced in accordance with its plain meaning"); Carr v.
6 First Nationwide Bank, 816 F.Supp. 1476, 1493 (N.D.Cal.,1993 (where plan 7 language is unambiguous, its natural meaning is conclusive). Specifically, any 8 appeal to fiduciary duties misses the mark, since an ERISA plan administrator is 9 bound to pay benefits in accordance with the terms of the plan, and any departure 10 from those terms would constitute a breach the administrator's statutory duties.
11 Kennedy, ___ U.S. ___,129 S.Ct. at 875. Hence, to adjudicate Plaintiff's claim, 12 this Court need only review the terms of the WAP plan document (specifically 13 Section 4), which is already in evidence, and apply them to the undisputed facts 14 concerning the date of Plaintiff's termination and the vested status of his WAP 15 benefits on that date. Any further evidence Plaintiff may offer cannot change the 16 clear result that the benefits he seeks were forfeited because his employment with 17 Defendants ended before those benefits vested.

18 Any further evidence Plaintiff may offer is unavailing even if the Court finds 19 that the relevant terms of the WAP are ambiguous or that factual determinations are 20 required before those terms can be applied to Plaintiff's circumstances. Since the 21 WAP confers discretion on the WAP Committee to administer claims – a point 22 Plaintiff does not dispute – its decision on these matters is reviewable in court only 23 for an abuse of discretion. Abatie v. Alta Life & Health Ins. Co., 458 F.3d 955, 965 24 (9th Cir. 2006). Such review, moreover, is limited to the administrative record which 25 the plan administrator had before it at the time the decision was made. Id. at 970.
26 That record has already been introduced into evidence and authenticated, and 27 nothing obtained in subsequent discovery alters its scope. Thus, any additional 28 evidence Plaintiff may offer in connection with his reply brief would be evidence

1 that was not part of the administrative record, which this Court cannot consider to 2 determine Plaintiff's entitlement to the benefit he seeks. Id.

3 Nor can Plaintiff escape the bar on evidence outside the administrative record 4 by suggesting that the evidence he has obtained is somehow relevant to demonstrate 5 that the WAP Committee acted under a conflict of interest. While a court may 6 consider evidence outside the administrative record for this limited purpose, see id., 7 the goal of such inquiry is only to determine "the degree to which the conflict 8 appears improperly to have influenced a plan administrator's decision." Montour v.
9 Hartford Life & Accident Ins. Co., ___ F.3d ___, 2009 WL 2914516 at *5. Here, 10 however, there is no evidence of any such improper influence. To the contrary, Ms.
11 Sikich testified both in her declaration submitted with Defendants' reply papers and 12 at deposition that none of the members of the WAP Committee responsible for 13 deciding Plaintiff's entitlement to benefits under the WAP (i) were employed by the 14 entity responsible for paying those benefits, or (ii) were aware of the financial 15 consequences of their decision. (Second Decl. of G. Sikich In Support Of 16 Defendants' Motion for Partial Summary Judgment [dkt. # 39-2] at 2:4-13; Sikich 17 Depo.¹ at 45:17-47:22, 59:9-60:20 & 61:24-63:7.) Discovery, moreover, has not 18 revealed any evidence that these decision-makers failed to follow established 19 procedures in considering Plaintiff's claim, disregarded or downplayed materials 20 submitted by Plaintiff, or gave undue weight to opposing evidence. Thus, there are 21 no facts or circumstances suggesting that a conflict of interest tainted the 22 administrative decision-making process and no reason to conclude that an abuse of 23 discretion occurred.

24 Finally, any further evidence Plaintiff may offer pertaining to the WAP's top-25 hat status is irrelevant since the same framework applies to the judicial review of a 26 claim for benefits "for all covered plans, top hat or otherwise." Sznewajs v. U.S.

27 ¹ The relevant excerpts of the Deposition of Gabriela Sikich are attached as 28 Exhibit A to the Second Declaration of Christopher W. Decker In Support Of Defendants' Motion For Partial Summary Judgment, filed concurrently herewith.

1 Bancorp Amended and Restated Supplemental Benefits Plan, 572 F.3d 727, 734 (9th 2 Cir. 2009). Specifically, a participant's entitlement to benefits is determined solely 3 by the terms of the plan document and the plan administrator's decision is 4 reviewable only for an abuse of discretion. Id. at passim. Indeed, the only difference 5 between the two types of plans which Plaintiff has suggested may affect the outcome 6 of this litigation is that the administrators of ERISA plans (other than top-hat plans) 7 are subject to ERISA fiduciary duty rules. However, as explained above, that 8 difference is immaterial here, since, in reviewing a claim for benefits, ERISA plan 9 administrators must exercise their fiduciary duties in accordance with the terms of 10 the plan document. See, e.g., Kennedy, ___ U.S. ___, 129 S.Ct. at 875.
11 Accordingly, in this instance, the analysis of Plaintiff's claim for benefits is the same 12 regardless of whether the WAP is a top-hat plan or not, and the Court need not even 13 resolve whether the WAP falls within the top-hat plan exemption.

14 IV. THE COURT SHOULD DISREGARD PLAINTIFF'S OBJECTIONS TO 15 THE SECOND DECLARATION OF GABRIELA SIKICH.

16 The Court's briefing schedule for the ERISA portion of the case provided that 17 the parties would submit simultaneous opening and reply briefs, which necessarily 18 forecloses either side from responding to the other's second submission.
19 Nonetheless, after Defendants filed their reply papers on August 5, 2009, which 20 included the Second Declaration of Gabriela Sikich In Support Of Defendant's 21 Motion For Partial Summary Judgment, Plaintiff filed evidentiary objections to that 22 declaration. This Court should disregard the objections since they exceed the scope 23 of the briefing requested by the Court.

24 In any event, Plaintiff's objections are without merit. Plaintiff objects that Ms.
25 Sikich is "wholly unqualified to render any testimony as to the administration, 26 management, or operation of the WAP Committee" because she is not a member of 27 that committee. (Pl.'s Obj. to Second Decl. of G. Sikich [dkt. # 41] at 2:14-2:28.)
28 However, Ms. Sikich does not testify to any of these matters in her Second

1 Declaration, but only provides information regarding the percentage of Defendants' 2 workforce eligible to participate in the WAP, the average compensation of those 3 eligible to participate and Defendant's workforce generally, and the membership of 4 the WAP Committee. She further testifies in her declaration that this information is 5 based on her own personal knowledge or her review of Defendants' business records, 6 establishing the necessary foundation for that testimony and an exception to the 7 hearsay rule. (Second Decl. of G. Sikich [dkt. # 39-2] at 1:5-8.)

8 Plaintiff further objects to paragraphs 6-8 of the Ms. Sikich's Second 9 Declaration on the grounds that her testimony regarding the contents of Defendants' 10 business records constitutes hearsay, violates the best evidence rule and is given 11 without adequate personal knowledge. However, Ms. Sikich is not attempting to 12 establish the contents of those records, but is rather relying on them to establish 13 certain facts regarding the percentage of employees eligible to participate in the 14 WAP, their average compensation, and the average compensation of Defendants' 15 workforce generally. Since those business records qualify for an exception to the 16 hearsay rule, Ms. Sikich may rely on them to establish the facts which they describe.
17 Her personal knowledge of the contents of these records is provided by her own 18 testimony in the declaration. (Second Decl. of G. Sikich [dkt. # 39-2] at 1:12-18.)

19 Finally, Plaintiff objects that Ms. Sikich's Second Declaration improperly 20 introduces new evidence not presented at the time of Defendant's opening brief.
21 However, the facts in Ms. Sikich's Second Declaration respond directly to the 22 arguments advanced by Plaintiff in his opening brief, specifically that (i) the WAP is 23 not a top-hat plan because participation is not limited to a select group of 24 management or highly compensated employees, and (ii) the members of the WAP 25 Committee who decided Plaintiff's claim for benefits had a financial incentive to 26 deny that claim. Accordingly, the declaration is proper as a rebuttal of the evidence 27 offered by Plaintiff in connection with his opening brief.

1 V. CONCURRENTLY HEREWITH, DEFENDANTS ARE FILING AN 2 AMENDED SECOND DECLARATION OF GABRIELA SIKICH TO 3 CORRECT A COMPUTATIONAL ERROR IN THE DOCUMENT 4 PREVIOUSLY FILED WITH THE COURT.

5 After completing their filing on August 5, 2009, Defendants became aware 6 that the Second Declaration of Gabriela Sikich filed concurrently with Defendants' 7 reply papers contained a computational error. Specifically, the average annual 8 compensation of WAP-eligible employees in WAP plan years 2003 through 2007 9 had been understated. The corrected numbers are provided in the Amended Second 10 Declaration of Gabriela Sikich In Support Of Defendants' Motion For Partial 11 Summary Judgment On Plaintiff's Claim For Benefits Under The Royal Bank Of 12 Canada U.S. Wealth Accumulation Plan, which is being filed concurrently herewith.

13 In its reply papers, Defendants relied on the incorrect data only to support their 14 argument that WAP participants qualify as "highly-compensated employees" 15 because they earn at least twice the average for Defendants' employees generally and 16 in excess of $100,000 per year. (Def.' Reply Memo. [dkt. # 39] at 5:17-6:9.) Since 17 this is all the more true based on the corrected data, the error in the data previously 18 provided is not material.

19 Defendants served the Amended Second Declaration of Gabriela Sikich on 20 Plaintiff on August 25, 2009, in advance of the deposition of Ms. Sikich. (See 21 Amended Second Declaration of G. Sikich, filed concurrently herewith, at 2.) Thus, 22 Plaintiff has had a full opportunity to inspect the amended declaration and examine 23 Ms. Sikich regarding its contents. Consequently, Plaintiff has not been prejudiced by 24 the error or subsequent correction.

25 VI. CONCLUSION

26 For all foregoing reasons, in addition to those set forth in the papers previously 27 filed by Defendants on July 22, 2009 and August 5, 2009, this Court should 28 adjudicate Plaintiff's claim for benefits under the WAP in favor of Defendants and enter judgment accordingly.

DECLARATION OF GABRIELA SIKICH

GABRIELA SIKICH declares:

1. I am the US Defined Contribution Plan Manager for RBC Capital Markets Corporation, a defendant in this action.

2. The facts stated in this declaration are true of my own knowledge or my review of the business records of the Royal Bank of Canada and/or its subsidiaries.

3. If called as a witness, I could and would competently testify as to the truthfulness of the facts contained herein.

4. From at least 2002 to the present, the Royal Bank of Canada has sponsored the Royal Bank of Canada US Wealth Accumulation Plan ("the WAP Plan").

5. I am familiar with and have access to business records regarding the terms of the WAP, eligibility requirements for various employees to participate in the WAP, the number of employees who were eligible to participate in the WAP, and the election of certain benefits under the WAP. I also have access to business records reflecting the compensation earned by various employees of WAP-participating entities (which, at present, are RBC Capital Markets Corporation, RBC Bank, and RBC Insurance).

6. Only a small percentage of the employees of WAP-participating entities are eligible to participate in the WAP. In 2003, only 7.11% of those employees were WAP-eligible. In 2004, only 13.08% of those employees were WAP-eligible. In 2005, only 13.06% of those employees were WAP-eligible. In 2006, only 14.40% of those employees were WAP-eligible. And in 2007, only 14.91% of those employees were WAP-eligible.

7. The average annual compensation of WAP-eligible employees in WAP plan years 2003 through 2007 was as follows: $269,156 in 2003; $310,908 in 2004; $315,494 in 2005; $327,348 in 2006; and $345,030 in 2007.

8. The average annual compensation of the workforce of all

4 9. I am familiar with the membership of the WAP Committee during 5 calendar years 2007 and 2008. The members of the WAP Committee present at the 6 December 7, 2007 meeting, and who participated in the consideration of the Mr.
7 Benhayon's request for accelerated vesting (following which the request was denied) 8 were: Dan Szabo, Mary Zimmer, Jim Chapman, and Lisa Sorenson. The same four 9 individuals were also the members of the WAP Committee present at the April 8, 10 2008 meeting, and who participated in the consideration of the Mr. Benhayon's 11 appeal of his denied request (following which the appeal was denied). None of these 12 four individuals is employed by the Royal Bank of Canada. All are employed by an 13 entity distinct from the Royal Bank of Canada.

14 I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of
